LEVERAGING A GLOBAL MINDSET FOR BUSINESS GROWTH: PREPARING TALENT TO SERVE U.S. INDUSTRY NEEDS

*November 19, 2019 | 1:00-4:45 pm
U.S. Department of Education
400 Maryland Avenue, SW
Washington, DC 20202*

Join the U.S. Department of Education and Title VI Centers for International Business Education for a workshop focused on global and cultural competencies and the 21st century workforce!

Who should attend?

K-16 educators and representatives from businesses, higher education, government, and educational organizations

What will I learn?

Resource presentations and tabletop activities will give attendees the opportunity to hear from and work with international business education experts and industry representatives to develop ideas for programs that teach global and cultural skills in tandem with business principles.

At the conclusion of the workshop, participants will be able to:

- Identify international business education resources relevant to their own needs
- Articulate the importance of a global mindset in the U.S. business workplace
- Leverage best practices from the field to internationalize student learning programs
- Draft preliminary next steps for internationalizing at least one student learning opportunity
- Connect with at least three stakeholders who could support your internationalization goals
